DAVID YAVORSKY NAMED PRESIDENT OF INTEGRATED BUSINESS SYSTEMS, INC.

Financial Industry Services Veteran Brings Vast Real Estate Experience to the Property Management Systems Firm

FAIRFIELD, NJ, July 1, 2009 – David Yavorsky has been named president of Integrated Business Systems, Inc., (IBS) announced Robert Entin, chairman and founder. Established in 1980, IBS is a pioneer and industry leader in real estate property management systems, providing clients with cutting-edge products and services, including its proprietary software system, IBS 10.0i.

A graduate of Penn State University, Yavorsky will oversee the day-to-day operations of IBS and will spearhead the company's ongoing growth. He joins IBS with vast experience in the financial services industry, specifically in mortgages and residential real estate. Most recently, he served as a division president for First American Corporation and chief information officer for the company's mortgage information division. Prior to that he had held positions with CitiCorp Mortgage and Travelers Mortgage.

“This is an exciting time for IBS as we continue to grow the company,” Yavorsky said. “We will be taking an overall look at the company, reaching out and meeting with the customer base, developing a sales plan and going into other markets as we increase our customer base and our revenues. We will be increasing the employee count for all the good reasons.

“We intend to increase the net worth of the company,” Yavorsky said. “We want to be a bigger player in a big pond of potential customers in commercial and residential real estate.”

IBS currently has a client base of nearly 100 major companies, and its personnel have vast experience in solving problems across the entire range of commercial and residential real estate operations. IBS' software programs have been designed with unprecedented levels of functionality and adaptability to enhance and upgrade the internal business operations of the owners, developers and managers of real estate properties.

The company's revolutionary software system, IBS 10.0*i*, fully utilizes the power of the Internet in a browser-based program. Developed in close cooperation with real estate development, management and accounting professionals, IBS 10.0*i* fully automates property management, accounting and construction management functions in one easy-to-use package. IBS 10.0*i* provides each operation with a live connection to consolidated information and the ability to generate instant reports and analysis.

As it celebrates its 30th Anniversary Year, IBS remains focused on its service commitment to existing users as it seeks to expand into new markets, including a re-launch of the company's Network Services Division. IBS remains committed to responding to local real estate requirements better than any other organization while delivering state-of-the-art property management services.
